My dream house is a cottage not far from the sea. In the ground floor, it's four rooms. The first room is my living room with a white sofa, a large armchair and a coffee table. A lot of plants, a lot of bookshelves. There is a lamp, a great window with a view of the garden, a television set and a piano. There is in my dream house a fully-equipped kitchen, with a fridge, and a door to the garden. There is in bath-room with a shower and a toilet. And there is a study-room with a desk and my computer. Over the years scientists have invented a great number of things which we now use in everyday life. For example, computers, printing machines, telephones, radio, television, automobiles, photography, electricity, steam engine, planes etc. One of the most useful and handy devices today is the computer. It is a comparatively new invention which came into use in the 20th century. Today people simply can't imagine their lives without computers. There is a whole generation which has grown up with calculators, computer games, word processor, internet and else. Electricity, perhaps, is even more important. We wouldn't be able to use computers and TVs without it. The invention of different types of transport has also changed the world. For example, airplanes and motor cars. Planes have brought distant lands within easy reach of ordinary people. American-born Wright brothers were the first to make the flight in 1903. The first petrol-driven car was produced in 1885 by the German engineer Carl Benz. Whether we like them or not, cars have given people great freedom of travel.
